WHAT IS IT?

The Permanent Supportive Housing Symposium is a 1.5 day forum to be held in Austin in November 2025.

The goals of the Symposium are to:

- Build capacity among supportive housing developers
- Assist in the implementation of policies and programs designed to improve housing and health outcomes
- Help professionals design interventions to address special populations

WHY IS IT IMPORTANT?

Over the past several years, we've witnessed a generational investment in creating more supportive housing options. The Symposium will seize on this energy and provide a platform for developers, property managers, service providers, health professionals, homelessness response organizations, and others to share best practices, collaborate, and gain insight into how to work together to move families and individuals from housing instability and into permanent, service-enriched housing.

ABOUT THE SYMPOSIUM

WHAT SHOULD I EXPECT?

The Symposium will offer three content tracks, allowing participants to tailor their experience according to their educational interests or needs. Track topics will include:

- Affordable housing finance, design, and development
- Supportive services delivery and property management
- Promoting positive health outcomes

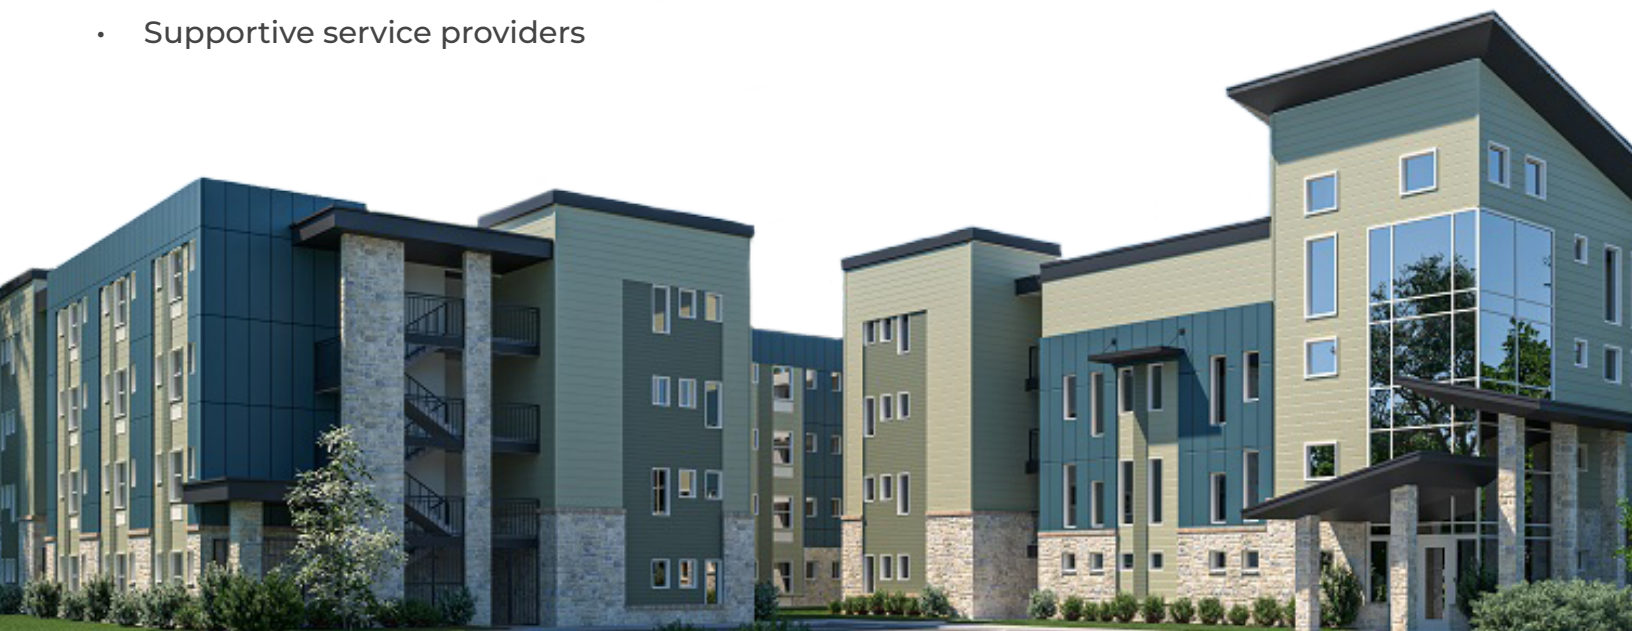

As a pre-Symposium add-on, the Corporation for Supportive Housing (CSH) will also offer a 1-day Supportive Housing Academy on Monday, November 3rd. The Academy is intended for audiences new to PSH and will help attendees understand the difference between supportive and affordable housing and assess organizational readiness to operate supportive housing.

WHO SHOULD ATTEND?

The Symposium is open to organizations and individuals with all levels of supportive housing expertise and experience. Audience members will include:

- Affordable housing developers
- Policy makers & advocates
- Property managers
- Supportive service providers
- Homeless response organizations
- Healthcare and managed care providers
- Financial institutions

WHY SPONSOR?

As the only convening of its kind in Texas, sponsoring this Symposium presents a unique opportunity to directly support housing professionals and communities as they explore solutions for residents experiencing homelessness. Your support will enable us to deliver high-quality continuing education and a shared learning environment that is critically important to our collective mission to house Texas' most vulnerable populations.
